If, like us, you're desperately clinging to the last months of summer, you'll be pleased to hear about French furniture brand Roche Bobois' whimsical new range of rugs and cushions that are pure sunshine. Jean Paul Gaultier, the so-called enfant terrible of fashion, is the brains behind the designs, which see butterflies and nature take centre-stage. Each winged rug is handwoven using wool and silk and is available in various sizes depending on the design. Cushions from £170; rugs from £4,990 (roche-bobois.com).

Kit Kemp Design Studio and Schotten & Hansen have a long relationship (the latter's flooring can be found in Firdale Hotels), but 'Pit-A-Pat' is its first furniture collaboration. The bronze-framed table designed by Minnie Kemp uses Schotten & Hansen's freshly developed magnetic veneer pieces that allow the multicoloured pattern on top to be easily swapped and changed. £37,500 (schotten-hansen.com).

If you haven't already heard of artist Charlotte Lancelot, you soon will. The Brussels-based creative has worked with the likes of cult rug brand Gan and has just been tapped by Case Furniture for a collection that includes cushions, a quilt and this 'Eclipse' throw in 'Dune'. It embodies Lancelot's trademark geometric shapes and muted hues. £165 (casefurniture.com).

Architect of joy Yinka Ilori has released his first collection of textiles and wallcoverings for Momentum. The 'Yinka Ilori Collection' includes rainbow-coloured patterns such as (from top) 'Dream Catchers', 'Shower Me With Flowers' and 'Eyes In Reflection', each designed to foster community and tell a story. Fabric approx £72 per m (momentumtextilesandwalls.com).
